Carol Stream, Ill., January 21, 2009– Invensys Controls has recently enhanced its Web site to drive business benefits for customers.

The Carol Stream, Ill.-based company has implemented an online Customer Toolbox at www.toolbox.invensyscontrols.com for trade professionals to track orders, review price schedules, and request an EDI partnership. This secure site is easy for busy distributors and contractors to access, is password protected and provides time-saving business applications and sale generating tools.

Customers looking for aftermarket products distributed through the company's Uni-Line® catalog (www.uni-line.com) now will be able to search quickly for any of the 8,000-plus items available.

"In addition to the product specifications provided, customers will have technical and sales literature, frequently asked questions and answers, and cross-reference tools available on each product page," stated Kathy Maynard, Director of Communications.

Customers who want to place an order can locate a wholesaler quickly using the Distributor Locator tool provided, which also is available on each product page. Additional site enhancements include the Contact Us, Technical Services and Customer Services pages for customers to reach Invensys Controls easily.

This new enhanced Web site is designed to make it simple to search for the information trade professionals need on HVAC, commercial refrigeration, appliance and thermostat products.
